PR Coordinator

With Taylor Johnson since: January 2013

People around the office come to me for: all sorts of things.

Three words that describe me are: thoughtful, outgoing, dedicated

Proudest personal moment: While I was in college I worked as a caregiver for a girl with a cognitive disability. Gaining her trust was extremely challenging, but finally receiving it and building a relationship with her was so rewarding.

When I was growing up I thought I'd be: a teacher living in the Bahamas. A girl can dream, right?

I never thought I'd be: living in Chicago Bears territory. I grew up a die-hard Packer fan, so being surrounded by Bears billboards and attire has taken a little getting used to (but I'll never be converted!).

Favorite Chicago building: I like Tribune Tower; I think it's cool that it is a little bit different than the rest of the Chicago skyline. Also, both my parents used to be journalists, so I've always had a love of the newspaper industry.

Last good book I read: I finally, finally read "Blink".

On my Ipod: Absolutely everything. Seriously, I have music ranging from classical to country to rap.

My favorite app: Draw Something! Even though my artistic skills are extremely limited (the other day someone mistook my palm tree for a ceiling fan), my friends and I have way too much fun with it.

What I like most about Taylor Johnson: The people. I immediately felt welcome and it's great to be surrounded by such a talented and helpful group.

The worst job I ever had was: Working at a fast food restaurant. I always left smelling like a French fry, and I really can't pull off a bowtie.

Continued...

Most people don't know that I: was a major band geek in high school.

My guilty pleasure is: A combination of bad reality TV and really salty popcorn. Or a combination of political dramas and really salty popcorn.
