

Julie Grange

Office Manager

A native Chicagoan, Julie is a jack of all trades at Taylor Johnson. Although her official title is Office Manager, Julie has experience in event planning and publishing – and puts that experience to work every day on behalf of our clients.

Julie is responsible for compiling and distributing TJ Talk, Taylor Johnson's daily digest of top real estate news and events. She also formats and distributes press releases, trains new employees, plans events and helps to ensure that Taylor Johnson's IT systems are all functioning perfectly. Julie may work behind the scenes, but the impact of her efforts is felt every day.

Earlier in her career, Julie was able to successfully plan a four-day kickoff event for 500 people on just two months' notice – a project that would normally be planned at least a year in advance. She pulled it off, on time and under budget.

When she's not working, Julie spends time with her daughter, Margaret, a college student majoring in English and Environmental Studies at Vanderbilt, and her yellow Lab, Charlie Knuckles. She meditates often and enjoys gatherings with her extended family.
